New Gun Laws: Red Flag

Michigan's Extreme Risk Protection Order (ERPO) Act, commonly called "Red Flag" will:

- Allow specified individuals, such as a spouse or family member, to file an action with a circuit court requesting the court to enter an ERPO for an individual.
- Require an action to state facts that showed that the issuance of an ERPO was necessary because the respondent posed a significant risk of personal injury to the respondent or others by possessing a firearm.
- Require the petitioner to provide specified information in a filed action, such as the knowledge that the respondent owned or possessed firearms.
- Require the court in which the action was filed to expedite a hearing on the issuance of an ERPO.
- Require the court to issue an ERPO if it determined that the respondent posed a significant risk of personal injury to the respondent or others by possessing a firearm and require the court to consider specified information in that determination, such as a respondent's previous convictions.
- · Specify timelines for a hearing on an ERPO, its issuance, and its service on a restrained individual.
- Require an ERPO to include specified provisions, such as a provision specifying that the restrained individual could not purchase or possess a firearm.
- Prescribe the actions a restrained individual could take in response to an ERPO.
- · Prescribe the process for serving an ERPO on a restrained individual.
- Specify the process that a designated law enforcement agency would have to follow when seizing and returning a firearm under an ERPO.
- Prescribe penalties for failing to comply with an ERPO and for knowingly and intentionally making a false statement to the court in a complaint.
- Prohibit an individual who was subject to an ERPO from qualifying for a purchase permit or a CPL.

New Gun Laws: Domestic Violence

A person convicted of a misdemeanor that involved domestic violence is generally prohibited from possessing or using a firearm or ammunition in the state until the person completed the terms of imprisonment and probation, paid all fines, and eight years had passed. The recent changes add specific misdemeanors and fines for current crimes, such as breaking and entering and vulnerable adult abuse, if the violator were the victim's spouse or former spouse, had a dating relationship with the victim, had a child in common with the victim, or was a resident or former resident of the victim's household. These additional misdemeanors will be considered misdemeanors involving domestic violence.

"Misdemeanor involving domestic violence" will mean a violation of any of the following offenses committed by an individual who is 1) the spouse of; 2) the former spouse of; 3) the current or previous dating partner of; 4) the current or former resident of a household with; or 5) had a child in common with, the victim:

- Assault and battery, or repeated assault and battery.
- · Assault without a weapon that inflicts serious or aggravated injury.
- Breaking and entering into any dwelling without first obtaining permission.
- Vulnerable adult abuse, provided the caregiver or other person with authority was guilty of a reckless act or reckless failure to act of the caregiver or other person with authority over a vulnerable adult caused physical harm to the vulnerable adult, or the caregiver or other person with authority over the vulnerable adult knowingly or intentionally committed an act that, under the circumstances, posed an unreasonable risk of harm or injury to a vulnerable adult, regardless of whether physical harm resulted.
- Willful and malicious destruction of personal property of less than $1,000, or repeated offense involving willful and malicious destruction of personal property of less than $1,000.
- Willful and malicious destruction of another person's house, barn, or other building or its appurtenances of less than $1,000, or a repeated offense involving willful and malicious destruction of another person's house, barn, or other building or its appurtenances of less than $1,000.
- Stalking.
- Malicious use of any service provided by a telecommunications service provider with intent to terrorize, frighten, intimidate, threaten, harass, molest, or annoy another person.
